Candid, relatable stories by established and emerging women writers about being discarded by someone from whom they expected more: a close female friend. There are 161 million women in America today, and our friendships are still as primary and universal as back when Ruth and Naomi, Elizabeth and Susan B., and Thelma and Louise made history. When a romantic relationship breaks up, no problem—there's an Adele song for that. Health concerns; problems in school; issues at the workplace? We've got our chums to prop us up. Until we don't. When our most sustaining relationships dissolve—those with the women friends in our lives—there's never been the fanfare that accompanies the loss of other relationships society deems “more important.” Until now. In Dumped: Stories of Women Unfriending Women, twenty-five established and emerging writers—including Jacquelyn Mitchard, Ann Hood, Carrie Kabak, Jessica Handler, Elizabeth Searle, Alexis Paige, and editor Nina Gaby—explore the fragile, sometimes humorous, and often unfathomable nature of lost friendship. These, like your own, are stories that stay with you—maybe for a lifetime.

A Study of Chemical Munitions Dumpsites in the Baltic Sea The Rosen Publishing Group, Inc

This book describes the creation of a monitoring network, which can provide information about the exact locations and the environmental threats posed by chemical weapons (CW) dumpsites in the Baltic Sea region, using autonomous underwater vehicles (AUVs) and remotely operated underwater vehicles (ROVs), and utilising the existing research vessels of NATO partner institutions as launching platforms. The dumping operations occurred shortly after World War II and included captured German munitions. Operations with munitions from the Soviet occupation zone were performed by the Soviet Navy, operations with munitions from British and American occupation zones were performed in areas outside of the Baltic Sea (Skagerrak Strait); the fate of munitions from the French occupation zone was never reported. Due to difficult legal status of these munitions, and high costs of remediation and retrieval, removal of these weapons from the bottom of the Baltic Sea seems unlikely in the foreseeable future. These dumped chemical weapons pose an actual environmental and security hazard in the Baltic Sea Region. Nowadays, with more and more industrial activities being performed in the Baltic Sea Area, the threat level is rising. The AUV survey is based on the IVER2 platform by OceanServer, equipped with Klein 3500 side-scan sonar. The identification phase utilises several ROVs, equipped with targeting sonars, acoustic cameras capable of penetrating turbid bottom waters up to 20m, and visual HD cameras. A novel sediment sampling system, based on a camera and sonar equipped cassette sampler, has been developed to obtain surface sediments. The test phase described consists of a survey phase, which will locate the actual objects concerned, and a monitoring phase, which will concentrate on the collection of environmental data close to the objects concerned.

Hearing Before the Subcommittee on International Trade of the Committee on Finance, United States Senate, Ninety-ninth Congress, Second Session, on S. 1655 ... July 18, 1986 Tate Publishing

Here's an impulse-purchase cartoon book on heartbreak that has all the wisdom, humor, punch, and impact of a great, witty, colorful greeting card -- on every single page. The unisex character in the book goes through all the physical and emotional pain of getting dumped by a loved one, but the ingenious color illustrations are so exaggerated and on-target that readers have to laugh. The subjects covered range from cartoons on depression, disbelief, nausea, and humor to self-condolence, binging-out, and finally recovering from a broken heart. The rejected protagonist is depicted in a variety of hilarious illustrations throughout the book that all readers will be able to relate to -- especially those who have had broken hearts! The simple, smooth, and effective rhyming text leads the reader through the therapeutic steps of heartbreak and recovery that ultimately lead to acceptance, renewed dating, and revived happiness. This is the perfect book for every man or woman who is dating in the '90s, because sooner or later -- when it happens to them -- they're going to need lots of cheering up!

Done with Being Dumped Oni Press
Michael had paused and studied my expression for a while before he let out those heart rending words. Kerry, sorry I can't do this anymore. My heart beat raced to an all time high. Huh? (While I still had chips of potato in my mouth). What are you talking about? I responded. Michael continued "I want a break! I don't love you anymore" NO! I could not take it anymore. He kept nagging me over one thing or the other. At that point, I lost control of being me. I wanted to be that perfect girl he met and loved. After he broke up with me, I had these repetitive thoughts of "if only". "If only I was richer and had my own house, he probably won't have dumped me... if only I was thinner and looked like one of those celebrities and had better features," and so on and on. "Stop thinking of yourselves as a second-rate being, accept your true self and move on with your life" Cathy my best friend had said to me. These words cut through my heart, and I got my dairy to pen down all I did to get over Michael. If you really want to know what i did, continue reading.

Stranded in Montana; Dumped in Arizona by Barbara Robey Egloff Shackett
Stranded in Montana; Dumped in Arizona is an inspiring story that serves to encourage living life to the fullest, regardless of the obstacles that may be encountered along the way. This series of vignettes carries the author from her very proper family upbringing through the ups and downs of six marriages. Aside from getting a peek at her romantic bliss and heartaches, you'll meet many small-town folk who show a slice of Americana. The author's adventures are related with humor and pathos, which makes for an entertaining read.
