The Eschatological Role of the Jerusalem Temple: An Examination of the Jewish Writings dating from 586 BCE to 70 CE Servant Ministries

The United States Government Printing Office (GPO) was created in June 1860, and is an agency of the U.S. federal government based in Washington D.C. The office prints documents produced by and for the federal government, including Congress, the Supreme Court, the Executive Office of the President and other executive departments, and independent agencies. A hearing is a meeting of the Senate, House, joint or certain Government committee that is open to the public so that they can listen in on the opinions of the legislation. Hearings can also be held to explore certain topics or a current issue. It typically takes between two months up to two years to be published. This is one of those hearings.

Black Students' Success in an Engineering Program Anchor Academic Publishing (aap_verlag)

This study sought to understand how Black students progress in an undergraduate engineering program. Researchers explored how undergraduate engineering majors navigated barriers using heuristic knowledge and action to be successful in engineering. The research questions were: 1) What barriers do Black engineering students experience? 2) What heuristic knowledge do Black engineering students need to overcome barriers? 3) What specific actions do Black engineering students take to overcome barriers? The sample of 16 Black undergraduate current (n = 11) and former (n = 5) engineering students attending a private, Midwestern university in Fall 2020 consisted of a representative group of sophomores (n = 6), juniors (n = 7), and seniors (n = 3). An explanatory sequential mixed methods approach used a survey and interviews to examine the barriers experienced, heuristic knowledge needed, and actions students took to overcome barriers while in engineering. Descriptive statistics and interview theme analysis were used to compare the experiences of current and former engineering students. Results indicated a variation in student experiences and description of racial discrimination with former engineering students experiencing less racial discrimination. Black students need mental health resources, but former engineering students expressed the need to know about and took action to find mental health resources more often than continuing engineering students. Continuing engineering students built friendships/relationships with engineering students that did not look like them more often than former engineering students. Black students' distinct lived experiences are invaluable to their success in engineering. This study supports defining Black student success as the ability to navigate unique barriers, identify heuristic knowledge needed to address these barriers, and take action to manage these barriers to move forward on their path in engineering.

Women in International Management Open Dissertation Press Using an interpretivist paradigm, the results of this study provided insight into what types of development initiatives divisions of student affairs were participating in, a deeper understanding of who was involved in fundraising efforts, how and in what ways the two divisions (institutional advancement and student affairs) were collaborating, and the effects of involvement by staff on traditional responsibilities and organizational structures. The study's findings also offer those who work in divisions of student affairs a broader understanding of fundraising practices and how to leverage participation in such practices if desired. This foundation provides practitioners with strategies on how to work together to create a more systematic and coordinated effort for accomplishing the institution's fundraising goals.

An Examination of the Role of Online Brand Community Forums in the Consumer Purchase Process John Wiley & Sons

This research aims to investigate the role or roles of the physical Jerusalem temple within the second temple Jewish writings in terms of whether the physical temple has any role to play in relation to the pivot point in eschatology. The pivot point or fulcrum in time refers to the end of the exile and perhaps the beginning of the eschaton. The exile may be theological, but many second temple Jewish texts address the physical gathering of the children of Israel to the land of Israel (i.e., from physical exile, even if the text also addresses a theological exile), thus, making the return a complete ingathering of the children of Israel. The passages of these ancient texts have been analysed before, but never with this lens. Looking to see if there is any role the Jerusalem Temple performs in expected eschatological events will at least allow an answer to be given, which is better than never asking the question in the first place, which has been the case until now. This study produces results as the Jerusalem Temple has always been a place of great expectations.

A guide to the techniques and analysis of clinical data. Each of the seventeen sections begins with a drawing and biographical sketch of a seminal contributor to the discipline. After an introduction and historical survey of clinical methods, the next fifteen sections are organized by body system. Each contains clinical data items from the history, physical examination, and laboratory investigations that are generally included in a comprehensive patient evaluation. Annotation copyrighted by Book News, Inc., Portland, OR

Bless God and Die

This study was designed to examine self-directed learning readiness of volunteer community leaders and to determine if and how they used self-directed learning in their community leadership roles. The sample included volunteer community leaders in South Florida serving as board members in community leadership organizations and Rotarians serving in leadership roles in the Rotary District 6990. The mean score for the 131 community leaders who completed the Self-Directed Learning Readiness Scale (Learner Preference Assessment) (Guglielmino, 1978) was 245.09. The mean was significantly higher than the general population mean (M = 214, SD = 25.59), t(130) = 18.69, p
